THIS IS JUDGMENT DAY FOR WASHINGTON PROS.

All Players Must Be Registered by Midnight-Many Teams Will Be Weakened by Failure of Stars to Return.

GAMES TO-DAY,

ALL-STAR GAME.

The all-star game in the Olympia League yesterday resulted in a victory for the team captained by Saunders over the nine led by Thompson, 18 to 7. The heat proved too much for the players, the game being listlessly played the latter part. Score:

League-American Security vs. D

By C. W. SWAN.

All professional ball tossers who expect to play under the amateur commission of the District will have to be registered by 12 o'clock to-night. That is the ruling of the amateur commission. The rule of the amateur commission. The rule reads that all players must be registered by June 1, 1911, and as this is the last of May the judgment day is on hand.

Many of the former stars of the ama-teur ranks of Washington have entered the salaried circuits and are making good, while many others have met with worse fate. "Yum" Moreland is making good with the Elizabeth City team in the Tidewater League. John Greer won his first game for the same team. Little Gill is the sensation of the Norfolk team in the same league, while Mick Keliher, Mace, and Driver are all with the Peters-burg nine of the Virginia League.

These are but a few, in fact, just a starter, of the many local ball tossers who are now in the professional ranks. While the rule of the commission may seem hard to the player returning about the middle of June, it is the only way to keep amateur ball half way clean in Washington. In other years the men would play all season with some minor league club, and then come back and play on their favorite team and win the ant for them, and more than likely

It is plain to be seen that this state of affairs was not fair to the other teams or members of the teams that the professionals joined. After playing all season with a team and just getting in reach of the big end of the season,
to have a man who has been playing professional ball all summer come and take your place is pretty tough. So the commission has done the right thing by adopting this rule. If they only stick to it.

Taken all in all, the rule is the best thing for the betterment of amateur hall in Washington. Now no player who is not registered by June 1 can play in the years to come, and in this way the professionals will gradually be weeded out of the amateur ranks. If the pros want to return home and play ball, let them start a semi-pro league of their own and keep away from the amateur situation. That is the only logical solution of the matter than the start as semi-professional will gradually from the amateur situation. That is the only logical solution of the matter was specified to the start as semi-professional solution of the matter start as semi-professional solution of the start as semi-professional Alexandria, Vs., May 20.—In a specuy double-header between the Cardinal Athietic Club, of this city, and the St. Stephen's of Washington, the St. Stephen's won one, while the Cardinals took the other. The batting and fielding of both teams was of the finest quality. The home run hit of O'Brien, of the home team, was the feature of both games. Although the Cardinals have played but few games this year, they showed the finest form of ball playing seen on local helds this season. The Cardinals feel that they are now ready to tackle anything in the District or vicinity.

all season with a team and just getting in reach of the big end of the season, to have a man who has been playing professional ball all summer come and take your place is pretty tough. So the commission has done the right thing by adopting this rule. If they only stick to it. When the players who are canned at they cannot play in the amateur leagues, a big howl is going up and then something will be done. Whether the commission will stick to its ruling or not is a matter of conjecture at the present time, but it is more than likely that a way out of the difficulty will be found for our returning stars. Maybe the commission will stand pat, and if it does, a mighty wail is going up from managers and players. They all want to win the pennant, and forget that they helped to make this rule before the real start of the season. Taken all in all, the rule is the best	By Elect, Carroll; by Lawson, Gill. Catholic University yesterday ended its baseball season by out-classing Gallaudet, 10 to 4. Moore, who was on the rubber for the Kendail Greeners, was unable to withstand the onslaught of the Red and Black batters, who landed on him for a total of fourteen hits, including a home run, three-basger, and three doubles.

The team behind him played a loose fielding game and Brooklanders ran wild on Catcher Morris. At first Gallaudet looked dangerous, scoring two runs in the opening session. Brady, who was playing left field for C. U... dropped a high fly with two down and let in two runs. Catholic University scored in the third when Ryan hit for the circuit.

In the fourth inning the Brooklanders got to Moore for six hits and the team behind him went to pieces, and when the smoke cleared away eight runs had crossed the pan. Score:
